Veterans exude pain, pride on Veterans Day

Philadelphia. The holiday for some isn't about the time they served but the time their fallen friends served.

"Depressing" is how Sgt. Maj. Charles Payne, 73, describes Veterans Day.

That's because while the annual holiday honors U.S. veterans of armed conflicts around the world, for vets, the hardest part is remembering their buddies.

"It's an honorable day, but it's like old wounds are springing forth and coming back. You go to see the names of people you knew," said Payne, of South Jersey, who served three tours as a Ranger in Vietnam.

"A lot of them died and a lot of them didn't get what they were due," Payne added

Payne experienced the unimaginable firsthand — like fighting with a group of 140 American soldiers that within a week saw their ranks decimated to 20.

"But we were winning," he said gruffly.

Payne had more near-death encounters than most people can imagine — like when he and other soldiers disagreed over how to best cross a valley.

Payne refused to go in, and took his men over a rope bridge across. The soldiers who went into the valley all died.

"All of them that went down there, all of them got killed. All of them got ambushed. It was a death trap," he said. "You don't move like that at night! I'm a Ranger. We know better."

An All-America football player and a Golden Gloves boxer, Payne had a shot at playing with the New York Giants but turned it down to go to war because he had promised a friend they would enlist together.

Payne went on to receive four Bronze Stars — a medal for heroism awarded to soldiers in rough-combat situations who fight their ways out, he said.

The holiday also takes its toll on the family members of fallen soldiers, like Charles Strange, father of Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Michael Strange, a SEAL who was one of 30 killed when their helicopter was shot down over Afghanistan on August 6, 2011.

"It's been emotional, real emotional," Charles Strange said of the holiday. "When it's your son, some days are real bad and some days are just bad."

Strange copes with his loss by organizing retreats for other families of fallen veterans' families through the Michael Strange Foundation.

Last month, he brought 50 families to the Shore for workshops, time with grief counselors and a sense of community.

Strange recalled that one mother danced. "She said it was the first time she's danced since her son died," Strange said. "Five years."

Remembering the fallen

Across Philadelphia, veterans of Iraq, Afghanistan, Vietnam, Korea and World War II were honored, as was the Tomb of the Unknown Solider of the American Revolution.

- "We all just did our part," said retired Capt. Terry Williamson, president of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund. "I did my duty and that's thanks enough."

Bartram. Teacher assault prompts rally

Days after a Vine video surfaced that shows the aftermath of a Bartram High School student body-slamming a teacher — the third assault on a teacher in a month at the school — education advocates, parents, teachers and students will rally against school violence this afternoon.

"You can't change the environment at a school if there aren't enough adults to enforce the rules and be models for acceptable behavior," said Jerry Jordan, president of the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers, who is also expected to rally at Bartram in Southwest Philadelphia at 3 p.m.

Two teachers were injured by students last month and a staffer was injured in March. METRO

Dad joins lion brood at zoo, new family now on exhibit

Philadelphia Zoo. The new mom and dad are ready to show off their young together.

Dad Makini sits in the sun with three of his four cubs. / PHILADELPHIA ZOO

Visit Metro.us to learn more about the lions and see more pics.

Nearly five months after 4-year-old Tajiri, a female African lion at the Philadelphia Zoo, gave birth to four cubs, the entire family — dad Makini, 5, included — are on exhibit as a family.

Since mid-September, Tajiri and her young — Mali, Kataba, Sabi and Msinga — had been assimilating with their father through a mesh wall, getting the new family used to one another.

"A lion mom normally separates from Dad and the main group in order to give birth," said Kay Buffamonte, the lions' keeper. "The cubs are born pretty tiny and they have to learn to walk and run. So when they are able to keep up with the group is when Mom rejoins with Dad."

Tajiri dictated when she would allow Makini to interact with their babies; this happens not only in a zoo environment, but in the wild, said Buffamonte.

"We start that on Mom's timeline," she added. "There's roaring and verbal communication."

And how is Makini doing as a new father?

"Dad's been pretty tolerant," Buffamonte said with a laugh. "He felt a little overwhelmed at first. They pull on his mane, pull on his tail. Just like lots of other families in the animal and human world, there's learning."

And if Makini has had enough for the day, he can go back to the living quarters the family share. But mom Tajiri, also a first-time parent, hasn't left the cubs' sides.

"Mom never leaves," Buffamonte said. "This mom is really vested in these kids. She's really anchored. She has endless amounts of patience."

The cubs, born in late June, are already pushing 60 pounds. In another six months, they could be up around 150 pounds. The entire lion family can now be seen at the Philadelphia Zoo's First Niagara Big Cat Falls.

Pols sue over law enabling gun-rights suits

Five Democratic Pennsylvania state legislators — and Mayor Michael Nutter and Lancaster Mayor Rick Gray — filed suit in a state appeals court, asking it to strike down a state law allowing advocacy groups to sue municipalities over local gun laws.

The law, passed last month and due to take effect in January, would also allow lobbying groups, such as the National Rifle Association, to recoup their legal costs when suits prevail.

Twenty of former slumlord's houses still up for sale

Kensington. A New York-based company is still trying to sell off the "slumlord millionaire's" former properties.

Of 86 homes formerly belonging to infamous slumlord Robert Coyle placed up for auction earlier this year, 20 are still for sale at cut-rate prices.

Madison Hawk, the New York-based company handling the sale, announced Tuesday that 20 remaining properties are still up for sale at $10,000 apiece. Eight of them are subject to a 5-year lease with a tenant option to purchase.

The properties were first put up for sale at an auction in May by Kenpor LP, a group of investors that acquired the portfolio of former Coyle properties after Coyle was convicted of bank fraud for receiving millions of dollars in fraudulent mortgages on homes in Kensington and Port Richmond.

Coyle collected rent checks from unsuspecting tenants while liens on some of the properties piled up and mortgage bills went unpaid, leading to some tenants' untimely and unexpected evictions. He was sentenced to six years in May 2013.

More than 40 properties sold at auction to a diverse range of buyers for prices ranging from $7,000 to $25,000. Kenpor originally planned to rehabilitate and sell all the homes but instead opted to sell off the houses after running into funding problems.

Decaying houses?

Some observers at the auction were hopeful that new owners would bring life into blocks that were blighted by Coyle's fraud.

- Each bidder at the May auction was required to put up a $6,500 deposit for repairs to the properties.

Veterans. Ceremonies, parades, concerts mark proud day in US capital

The capital marked Veterans Day on Tuesday with ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery where Vice President Joe Biden said the 23 million U.S. veterans were the backbone of the nation.

The commemoration at Arlington, where more than 40,000 military personnel and their families are buried, was part of events that included a giant concert featuring Bruce Springsteen and Rihanna.

A bugler played "Taps" after Biden laid a wreath at Arlington's Tomb of the Unknowns. Biden later told hundreds of onlookers, many of them veterans, that their service had made them "the most tested of all Americans." REUTERS

NY doctor free of Ebola, discharged from hospital

Disease free. The discharge of Dr. Craig Spencer means no one in the U.S. is being treated for the deadly virus.

A New York doctor who has recovered from Ebola left the hospital on Tuesday and urged support for U.S. health workers treating patients in West Africa so they do not face "stigma and threats" when they return home.

The discharge of Dr. Craig Spencer, 33, who worked with Ebola patients in Guinea and had been held in isolation at Bellevue Hospital Center since he was diagnosed with the virus on Oct. 23, means no one in the United States is being treated for the disease.

Looking gaunt but happy, Spencer high-fived Bellevue nurses and was hugged by New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio, the city's first lady Chirlane McCray and a handful of other officials at a news conference before his release.

"My infection represents a fraction of the more than 13,000 reported cases in West Africa, the center of the outbreak," said Spencer, a physician from New York-Presbyterian/Columbia University Medical Center who worked overseas with Doctors Without Borders.

A handful of U.S. states have imposed mandatory quarantines on health workers returning from Ebola-ravaged West African countries Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone, while the federal government is wary of discouraging potential medical volunteers. REUTERS

Apple to face lawsuit over vanishing text Android messages

Smartphones.
Apple is accused of failing to disclose that its software blocked texts from non-Apple devices.

The case involves a plaintiff who switched to a Galaxy S5. / GETTY IMAGES

Apple Inc. was ordered to face a federal lawsuit claiming it failed to tell consumers that its messaging system would block them from receiving text messages if they switched to Android-based smartphones from iPhones.

U.S. District Judge Lucy Koh in San Jose, California, said Apple must face plaintiff Adrienne Moore's claim that the message blocking interfered with her contract with Verizon Wireless for wireless service, which she kept after switching in April to a Samsung Galaxy S5 from an iPhone 4.

Moore claimed that Apple failed to disclose how its iOS 5 software operating system would obstruct the delivery of "countless" messages from other Apple device users if iPhone users switched to non-Apple devices. REUTERS

Tension

US says it will take tough line with China

The United States will be "very clear" with China if it veers beyond the bounds of international norms on cybersecurity and other issues, a senior U.S. official said on Tuesday ahead of a summit between the leaders of the two countries.

The comments by Ben Rhodes, a deputy national security adviser, come at a time when Beijing is increasingly assertive in the region and has been pushing to establish institutions that it aims to lead.

Cyber-spying, maritime disputes, and a wide range of other issues will come up when President Barack Obama holds formal talks with Chinese President Xi Jinping on Wednesday, Rhodes said. REUTERS

Ten women die at sterilization 'camp' in India

Ten women died and 14 were in serious condition after botched operations at a government mass sterilization "camp" in the central Indian state of Chhattisgarh, officials said on Tuesday.

The women fell ill on Monday, two days after surgery at a so-called family planning camp at a village. Such camps are held regularly in Chhattisgarh and other Indian states as part of a long-running effort to control India's booming population.

"It was a serious matter of negligence. It was unfortunate," the chief minister of the state, Raman Singh, told reporters. Four officials have been suspended and an investigation will be held, he said. REUTERS

Obama and Putin are odd couple at Beijing summit

Awkward. Obama and Putin have never had anything close to personal chemistry.

Russian President Vladimir Putin and President Barack Obama arrive to attend a group photo with the leaders of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation. / GETTY IMAGES

A few brief encounters between Barack Obama and Vladimir Putin during an Asia-Pacific summit in China on Tuesday spoke volumes about the chilly state of relations between the United States and Russia.

With the two men crossing paths twice this week, first in Beijing and later at a G20 summit in Brisbane, Australia, there was little chance they could avoid interacting on the international stage — and with the eyes of the world press and fellow leaders upon them.

There was little warmth on display between Obama and Putin at the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) forum, especially with Russia's role in the conflict in Ukraine.

When the summit opened in a sprawling convention center at a lake outside Beijing, Chinese President Xi Jinping walked in with Obama and Putin, both unsmiling, on either side of him.

"It's beautiful, isn't it?" Putin was overheard saying in English in Obama's general direction, referring to the ornate conference room.

"Yes," Obama replied, coldly, according to journalists who witnessed the scene.

The three leaders stopped at Xi's seat at the table. Putin reached out and clapped Obama on the shoulder. Obama barely responded. The two then took their seat to Xi's left and right.

Later, Obama and Putin were spotted in business-like conversation, trailed by a translator, as they entered a hall for the summit "family photo." REUTERS

Quoted

"On three occasions throughout the day, for a total of approximately 15-20 minutes, President Obama had an opportunity to speak with President Putin. ... Their conversations covered Iran, Syria and Ukraine."

Polygamy. Mormons admit church founder had about 40 wives

The Mormon church has admitted that founder Joseph Smith married about 40 women including a 14-year-old and others who were already the wives of his followers, having maintained for nearly 200 years that he was monogamous.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints has tried to gloss over aspects of its history, including the polygamy practiced by Smith and Brigham Young, who helped found Salt Lake City, Utah, the headquarters of the Mormon church.

The church has been widely criticized for its treatment of women, black people, who it barred from the higher priesthood until 1978, and gays, who were banned from its temples if they were sexually active.

Smith's wives were mostly between the ages of 20 and 40, but Helen Mar Kimball, the daughter of close friends, was "sealed" to him several months before she turned 15.

"Plural marriage was difficult for all involved. For Joseph Smith's wife Emma, it was an excruciating ordeal," according to the essay, part of a collection issued over the past year.

Quoted

"Joseph married many additional wives and authorized other Latter-Day Saints to practice plural marriage."

A church essay entitled "Plural Marriage in Kirtland and Nauvoo" said, noting that "careful estimates put the number between 30 and 40."

The church, founded in 1830, banned polygamy in 1890 when the government threatened to deny Utah statehood.

Hole swallows car, forces evacuations

Residents in a central Florida community watched anxiously on Tuesday after two holes opened in the ground, including one that swallowed a car, forcing six families to evacuate their homes.

The first of the two holes opened on Monday morning in the Holiday Travel Park, a community for people aged 55 and over about 35 miles northwest of Tampa that houses some 500 residents during the peak winter months.

The hole was only 4 feet on each side when Pasco County Fire Rescue arrived on Monday at the property, authorities said in a statement. Within 15 minutes, it had grown big enough to swallow a car at its edge.

The mobile home beside the hole has been condemned. Families were told not to stay in five nearby homes until the ground was found stable, officials said.

A second hole opened nearby on Tuesday, but officials said no buildings were immediately affected.

"We can't say what Mother Nature is going to do," said Roberta Pickering, a park manager. "Luckily, this didn't swallow any homes, praise the Lord."

Early snow. Heavy snow in northern Great Lakes while cold sweeps through the south

Drivers faced a second day of unseasonably heavy snow and some businesses and schools shut down in the northern Great Lakes region on Tuesday, while a cold front was expected to push cold air south as far as Texas on Wednesday.

"Temperatures will be 20 to 40 degrees below average from just east of the Rockies to the Plains," the National Weather Service said on its website.

The cold was expected to extend as far as Texas on Wednesday, with freeze warnings issued for about two dozen counties including Dallas.

Though the day began mildly in some parts of the Midwest, temperatures dropped quickly. Chicago's O'Hare International Airport weather monitoring station temperatures plunged to 40 degrees at 9 a.m., down from 58 degrees at around midnight.

Farther north, more than a foot of snow fell on some areas of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

"We are dealing with a major snowstorm up here, but being in the north woods we seem to tackle those things fairly easily, even if they come early," said Capt. Dave Gardner of the Vilas County Sheriff's Office in Eagle River, Wisconsin, a popular snowmobiling destination near the Ottawa National Forest.

Local media reported that schools closed in some towns — where they were not already closing for the Veterans Day holiday — and Veterans Day ceremonies were postponed for a day in northern areas of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

The Minneapolis bus system, Metro Transit, said about half of its buses were running behind schedule due to wintry road conditions early in the morning. REUTERS

JLaw quits the Internet and it's all your fault!

GETTY IMAGES

Great job, haters. You've gone and scared off Jennifer Lawrence. The "Hunger Games" star insists she has instituted a firm anti-social-media stance, and it's all because you couldn't play nice. "The Internet has scorned me so much that I feel like it's that girl in high school that I'm like, 'Oh, you want to talk about her? Yeah, I'll do that!' Take my hoops off, I'm ready to go," she says in a BBC radio interview.

But it's not just scorn that's keeping her away. Lawrence thinks she just can't handle Twitter. "I don't really understand what it is. It's like this weird enigma that people talk about. It's fine, I respect that, but no, I'll never get a Twitter," she says. Aww, she says "a Twitter" just like my 72-year-old aunt. That's adorable. "If you ever see a Facebook, Instagram or Twitter that says it's me, it most certainly is not." Maybe someone should tell her about her official Facebook page. It just so happens that almost 11 million people have clicked "like" on that page.

Cos and effect: Don't ask people to meme you if you have remained mum on certain sexual assault allegations

In other "totally not getting the Internet" news, Bill Cosby got more than he bargained for this week when he asked fans online to "meme" him, offering a meme generator on his site where fans could put block text over photos of him from "The Cosby Show" a la Lolcats. (Remember Lolcats?) Well, a lot of people used it, only they used it to reference allegations of rape made against the comic a decade ago. His team deleted his initial tweet and took down the meme generator as fast as possible, but not before some choice screen grabs went up.

Spears and Ebersol haven't even been photographed together by Getty Images, our photo subscription service of choice. / GETTY IMAGES

Britney Spears evidently can carry on with her new boyfriend, TV producer Charlie Ebersol, now that he's passed her dad's extensive round of background checks. "Anyone dating Britney must undergo a background check and sign a confidentiality agreement," a source says, according to Star magazine. "Obviously, Charlie made the cut." About that confidentiality agreement: In a show of good faith, Spears' dad "offered to pay Ebersol's legal fees if he needed someone to look it over." Ah, young love.

Conan O'Brien plays 'Assassin's Creed: Unity'

Conan O'Brien posted yet another installment of his hilarious series, "Clueless Gamer," with a look at the new "Assassin's Creed: Unity," which takes place during the French Revolution. "It's by the company Ubisoft," O'Brien says. "Which is what my wife said to me on my wedding night." As usual, O'Brien has trouble mastering the game, as he is more interested in looking at a painting than escaping the Bastille and killing people. "You think that's fog," O'Brien says of one aerial shot of Paris, "That's actually the odor of the French people wafting up into the city."

Q&A
DAMON WAYANS JR. JUST WANTS TO DRAW

The "Big Hero 6" vocal star talks about playing a neurotic superhero, the heart of "New Girl" and, of course, gynecologists.

METRO DOES NOT SHARE DAMON WAYANS JR.'S OPINION THAT A GYNECOLOGIST ONLY LOOKS AT SICK VAGINAS.
WIREIMAGE

On the brilliant-but-canceled "Happy Endings," Damon Wayans Jr. proved he's a master of the high-pitched squeal. So it shouldn't have come as a surprise to him that for "Big Hero 6," Disney wanted his character, Wasabi, to sound not all that manly. We caught up with Wayans to talk about the animated film, plus his current work on "New Girl" — and how if everyone followed their childhood dreams, we'd have a world full of ninjas, superheroes and disappointed gynecologists.

Did you feel at all slighted when you realized the voice they wanted from you was not exactly a big tough guy?
I didn't really feel slighted. It was one of those things where it's like, "Whatever you want." Because growing up, I wanted to be an animator and an illustrator, so I always looked up to Disney.

What stopped you from pursuing illustration?
I don't know. I mean, I still draw constantly. I'm actually developing a graphic novel right now. But I don't know. Nobody's ever their first dream — I mean, rarely. There would be so

Something 'New'

How's "New Girl" going?
They give you a lot of freedom. They don't necessarily use all of (the ad libs), but you definitely are allowed to express yourself and be funny. It's always fun to make the crew laugh as well, or to make one of the characters break within the scene, I love that. I just love destroying a take. Like, we have to go from the top because I said something that was funny. I mean, I know toward the end of the day you just want to get through it because everyone's tired, so I'll hold back then.

How does the "New Girl" experience compare to "Happy Endings"?
I feel like "Happy Endings," we never had the luxury of comfort. We never felt like we were just going to be here for years, so we were always eager to give our best. When you're on "New Girl" and you know it's going to be here for a couple more years, you're a little more relaxed. I also feel like the one thing that "New Girl" has that "Happy Endings" didn't ... is heart. I feel like "New Girl," no matter how crazy they get, they'll have at least one or two scenes where they just ground the hell out of it and it's like, this is why the show stays on.

many ninjas and superheroes now if everybody was their first dream. I remember growing up, being at sixth-grade graduation and, like, half my class wanted to be gynecologists. I was like, "Why do you guys want to look at sick vaginas, dude?" They probably thought in their head it was so noble.

Or they had just learned what a gynecologist was.
Yeah, they were like, "You get to look at vaginas?"

What to see at the Asian American Film Festival

Big screen. The seventh annual fest also includes sushi-making, a talk on hip-hop and a martial arts demo.

This year's Philadelphia Asian American Film Festival marks the culmination of the first year-round slate of programming for PAAFF. In addition to the 16 feature films, there will be sushi demos following films under the PAAFF Eats heading, a panel discussion on the influence of Asian culture on hip-hop as part of the PAAFF Pulse series and a martial arts demonstration between screenings of "Uzumasa Limelight" and "Awesome Asian Bad Guys." For the full lineup, see www.paaff.org. Here are our picks:

'Cicada'

Thursday, 8:30 p.m.
International House
Shot in Japan by students of Southern California's Biola University, "Cicada" is a tender and offbeat story about an introverted teacher who learns that he can't have children, then suddenly begins having visions of cicada shells that may ultimately bring him out of his own shell.

'Approved for Adoption'

Nov. 16, 4 p.m.
International House
Using a mixture of animation, live action, archival and home movie footage, filmmaker Jung Henin recounts his adoption by a Belgian family in the aftermath of the Korean War.

'American Rimpoche'

Nov. 22, 2 p.m.
Asian Arts Initiative
Philly native Nikki Appino directed this doc about Tibetan monk Gelek Rimpoche, credited with popularizing Buddha's teaching in the States as guru to such high-profile followers as Allen Ginsberg.

Felicity Jones plays more than the wife

Jones plays Jane Hawking (pictured with Eddie Redmayne as Stephen Hawking) in the biopic "The Theory of Everything."/ UNIVERSAL PICTURES

Interview.
The "Theory of Everything" star says her role is not just Mrs. Stephen Hawking.

Felicity Jones has a habit of playing partners of powerful men — and her characters are as interesting as the men they love. In "The Invisible Woman" she was Nelly Ternan, Charles Dickens' secret mistress. Equally formidable is Jane Hawking, the now-ex-wife of theoretical physicist Stephen Hawking in "The Theory of Everything."

It's odd that a devout Christian such as Jane got along so well with Stephen, who may be history's most famous atheist.
I was always trying to understand Jane's ideology. Her faith has helped her. ... Jane was very much a part of Stephen's intellectual life. ... They shared an intellectual empathy with each other. When he lost the ability to write, she would type up his theses and the early drafts of his books.

You portray her as more than just "the wife of a great man."
What I liked is she's vulnerable. She has this love, but at the same time she's incredibly tough. ... There's this cool determination and survival instinct. Both she and Stephen just don't care. They're really rock 'n' roll. They're not bothered about what everyone is thinking.

She suffers, but never makes a big deal of it.
In my notes I was always writing "unsentimental, unsentimental, unsentimental." There was no self-pity. I think that's a very English, postwar mentality. It's that idea of you've got to get on with it, keep calm and carry on.

Acting prep

Becoming Jane

You actually got to speak to the person you were playing this time.
Meeting Jane after reading her book gave me so much more material. I was watching her intensely. ... She has these very ladylike qualities. I worked with a movement coach to capture how that changes over 20 years. Then her voice is very high-pitched — a very finely spoken voice. ... She said I got her voice.

The Weekly Yelp. Time for some chili in Philly

It's officially chili season, Philadelphians! And while everyone in town will undoubtedly claim their version as the best, today we're serving up five alternatives to your crock pot concoction. From vegan to mac and cheese to one served on a corn bread waffle, you'll want to give these chilis a chance this season.

A Yelper who goes by the name of AV digs into some serious chili dog action. / YELP

Percy Street Barbecue

900 South St., Washington Square West

I had the smoked brisket, which was awesome, although the vegan black bean chili appetizer actually overshadowed the meat. It was amazing! ALEX G.

HipCityVeg

127 S. 18th St., Rittenhouse Square

I decided to try the quinoa and three bean chili and a side Caesar salad. I didn't have to wait long for the order. ... It was delicious and filling. The chili had kidney, black and red beans in it as well. Very flavorful. JULIA C.

Burger Bar at Gallo's

Great food. You have to try the chili. The best in Philly. STEPHEN B.

Memphis Taproom

For dinner, we had the chili mac and cheese, it was pretty epic. I'm not a fan of chili outside of my own, but this was incredible with orecchiette pasta and loaded with cheese and green onions. LISA L.

SMALL BUSINESS: BIG GROWTH

With hard work and lessons learned from the Goldman Sachs 10,000 Small Businesses (10KSB) program, and help from Greater Philadelphia Hispanic Chamber of Commerce Latino Innovation and Growth, Latino business owners are primed to see their businesses boom.

PHILADELPHIA-Starting a business can be difficult, but making it grow can be just as challenging. Like many business owners Oswaldo Quintero wanted to expand his pest control business and increase revenues, so he looked to the Greater Philadelphia Hispanic Chamber of Commerce (GPHCC) for assistance; today, he shares the knowledge learned with Latino Innovation and Growth participants.

The Latino Innovation and Growth program is a series of workshops that help entrepreneurs evaluate the current state of their business, and use the Business Model Canvas to create a growth plan to position their business for both short-term and long-term growth. The ongoing program starts every six weeks and there is no better day than today to register and benefit from the expertise provided.

Go for the gold

Design. The glam metal is having a major moment in home decor.

Scroll through your favorite design blogs, Pinterest boards or home catalogs and it'll be hard to ignore the vast number of fancy gold objects staring back at you. But when did our current obsession with the metal start?

"I think everything starts with fashion and then trickles down," says Christiane Lemieux, founder of DwellStudio and executive creative director of Wayfair, about the decor trend. "A few seasons ago, designers like Etro were showing neo-1920s deco-inspired fashion. The deco period was the height of black and brass. This was followed by the revival of 'The Great Gatsby,' and all things deco just escalated."

Nowadays, you can find any product, from a stapler to pendant lamp to dish rack and even a crib, in sparkly gold or matte brass. And no matter which finish you prefer, these objects add a bit of glamour and warmth to your everyday.

But enjoy the trend now, says Lemieux, because soon it'll be all about copper: "It's the next 'it' metal!"

Neil Patrick Harris purchases Harlem's most expensive townhouse

Real Estate. The actor and husband David Burtka moved to the New York City neighborhood because it was the best bang for the buck.

Meet Harlem's newest residents. / FILMMAGIC

Broadway and TV star Neil Patrick Harris is a nester. In a recent interview with Charlie Rose, he explained why he and his husband chose to buy a home in Harlem.

Mostly, Harris said, it was because they found the most "bang for [their] buck" in that area.

TheRealDeal.com is a daily blog and monthly magazine covering real estate in the New York metro area.

THE REAL DEAL

Harris added that he wanted to be in Manhattan. The four-time Tony Awards host and his family bought the 8,000-square-foot home at 2036 Fifth Ave. last year.

"We looked at places that were bridges away," Harris said, "but we wanted to be in it."

While the couple and their two children have moved into the $3.6 million home, renovation is still ongoing.

The perfect fit

Citizens of Humanity just debuted a capsule collection of flares. Each month, from now until February, the brand will release two new styles. / ALL IMAGES PROVIDED

Fashion. Catherine Ryu of Citizens of Humanity spills her denim styling tips.

Denim is practically our second skin. So it's crucial we feel — and look — amazing in our trusty daily uniform. When we met Citizens of Humanity Creative Director Catherine Ryu recently, the petite designer looked so graceful in her slouchy, boyish jeans that we had to get her tips on buying and rocking our next pair.

Cuff or roll

"If you're on the petite side and you're wearing boyfriend jeans or something looser, roll them up," says Ryu. It's the 5-foot-2-inch designer's go-to styling trick. "When jeans are shorter, they just make you look taller," she says. Ryu suggests rolling pants up to ankle-length, so that a little skin shows.

Beyond skinnies

Switch up your jean game with '70s flares — which are making a huge comeback, says Ryu. "Pair them with a scoop-neck top or a fitted button down, tucked in, for effortless style," she adds. The new pair she's loving: The Fleetwood, a high-rise flare. "High-rise flares give you the illusion of mile-long legs."

Room for seconds

You know those slightly baggier jeans you save for lazy Sundays? Add them to your daily rotation. "Slimmer boyfriend fits have been on trend the past few seasons," says Ryu. "We're seeing the silhouette moving away from the body toward a slightly looser fit." The designer loves wearing hers with a T-shirt and an army jacket. But she says: "Add a pair of heels to off-set the tomboy vibes."

Cuff or roll the bottom of boyfriend jeans, says Ryu.

TINA CHADHA

tina.chadha@metro.us

Dressing up

Denim evening wear

Long gone are the days where you're considered underdressed for showing up to a party in jeans. "Dark washes especially make a great alternative evening look," says Ryu. She loves the brand's Rocket fit in Axel, which is a high-rise skinny in super-stretch black fabric. And if you want to be a real scene-stealer, Ryu says to throw on some heels with overalls — in which case, we'll see you by the hors d'oeuvres.

Shop

Finding the perfect pair

"When shopping for jeans, go to multi-brand stores that stock more than one denim line," advises Ryu. "The staff there should be able to point you toward the brands that are right for your body."

Peeing at night just got so much more exciting

Gadgets. There's an IllumiBowl for that.

"It just looks cool to have a glowing toilet," says IllumiBowl creator Matt Alexander. / PROVIDED

Going to the bathroom in the middle of the night just got a whole lot flashier. IllumiBowl, designed by Utah native Matt Alexander, is a motion-activated LED that casts a beam of colored disco lights into the commode, handily helping you find your way to your throne through sleepy eyes. We spoke with Alexander about his invention.

What inspired you to create the IllumiBowl?
Simply this: I was tired of being woken up after having to turn on the lights every time I went to the bathroom at night.

Are you trying to turn toilet time into a thrill?
It's meant to make nighttime bathroom trips convenient, and it just looks cool to have a glowing toilet, too!

Did you used to have serious difficulty using the toilet at night?
I didn't have a lot of trouble. It's just I had two choices: Turn on the light and get blinded and woken up, or pee in the dark and risk missing the toilet and having an angry wife!

What reaction do you expect from consumers?
We have had an incredible reaction so far. It appeals to older customers because it is convenient, younger customers because it is cool and unheard of and mothers because they can use it to potty-train their young children who are too short to reach the lights at night.

Andrew Solomon on the dignity of a chosen death

Andrew Solomon's mother chose to end her life with a prescribed medication after battling ovarian cancer. / ANNIE LEIBOVITZ

Assisted suicide. The psychologist argues for the right to die.

Tune in

The Legalize Assisted Suicide debate will take place Nov. 13 at 6:45 p.m. Watch it live at IntelligenceSquaredUS.org.

The end of a life is inevitably tragic — but what if an even bigger tragedy could be avoided by hastening it?

That was the eventuality that 29-year-old Brittany Maynard avoided. On Nov. 1, supported by her family and the millions around the world who learned about her choice to end her life before an aggressive brain tumor could leech it from her slowly and painfully, Maynard took a prescribed dose of lethal medication.

To get that prescription, Maynard moved with her family to Oregon, one of only five states with a "Death with Dignity" law that allows for assisted suicide, in which a doctor can provide medication to end the life of a dying patient who's deemed mentally competent. Whether the option should be available nationwide or banned entirely will be the subject of an Intelligence Squared U.S. debate taking place Thursday, with passionate advocates on both sides.

One of the issue's supporters, distinguished author and Columbia University professor of clinical psychology Andrew Solomon, has written about his mother's assisted suicide in 1991 after a years-long battle with ovarian cancer. He calls Maynard "little short of heroic" for devoting the final months of her life to speaking about the issue — and giving it a new face.

"People tend to distance themselves from the very old and sick until they themselves are very old and sick," Solomon tells Metro. "I think having someone who is young and beautiful and articulate who appeared to have a happy marriage and a close relationship with her parents ... forced people to think, 'Oh, this isn't just a debate that has nothing to do with me, this is a debate that could be relevant to me at a moment's notice.'"

Solomon's mother's decision was influenced by having watched one of her best friends die of cancer "in pain that was not well-controlled and in a state of relative incoherence. My mother just said, 'The person I saw in that hospital bed was not Sandy. She was not the Sandy I had known and loved for many years, and I don't want you to remember me like that and I don't want to go through that experience.'"

Currently, the law requires that a patient be diagnosed with a terminal illness to have the option of assisted suicide. Though Solomon supports strict guidelines on who that choice is made available to, that standard doesn't include everyone whose quality of life no longer satisfies them. "I've seen people who have ALS or even people who have Alzheimer's who are at a point at which they no longer wish to go on, and the question of whether ... those people should have access to the right to die is complicated and nuanced simply because it's more open to reinterpretation and misuse."

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Look into stable investment opportunities. This is an excellent day for absorbing some serious knowledge.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Your mate may be upset with your change of attitude. Try to explain your feelings. A visitor may cause disruptions.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Your creative talents will come in handy. You will impress others with your results.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Get involved in hobbies or creative endeavors. You will feel inspired and full of ideas. If you are thinking about starting a family, this is an excellent day to begin. Enjoy your partner and have fun.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Emotional upset will cause temper tantrums. Try to curb your reactions to situations regarding home.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Mix business with pleasure for the best results today. You can solidify a partnership that will result in prosperity. Don't hesitate to follow your instincts.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Unusual circumstances will surround legal and financial matters. Make sure you have all the information and that you understand it.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Talk to an important someone. Voice your complaints instead of letting your hostility grow. This way, you can clear the air.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. This is not the best time to push your beliefs on friends. Stick close to home and finish the projects that you've started.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Your need to contribute to worthwhile causes will enable you to offer not only valued suggestions but also your time and energy.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Don't bother trying to deal with an erratic individual who is not willing to listen. Direct your thoughts to areas that will bolster self-esteem. EUGENIA LAST

Net neutrality benefits the average citizen and President Obama is right to support it

Internet carriers want to make more money from regular citizens by bamboozling us into giving up Net neutrality — giving up our right to transmit data on the Internet without paying more for faster speeds.

Currently, we get fast speeds for everything, but Internet companies want us to pay for what we are now getting for free.

It's a straight-up bad deal for regular citizens, which is why we flooded the FCC with comments against any change.

But it's as good as found money for Internet carriers, which is why they are paid to get the FCC commissioners in their pocket.

Now President Obama has come out on regular citizens' side and is advocating for Net neutrality.

If we don't like the rich getting richer by picking our pockets, it's a no-brainer.

We should support Net neutrality.

SANCHEZ'S EAGLES DEBUT UPSTAGED BY DEFENSE

After five years on Broadway, Mark Sanchez knows a little something about getting upstaged, and it happened to him again Monday night at Lincoln Financial Field. Though he got fantastic reviews for his debut as starting quarterback, it was the defense that stole the show.

Connor Barwin, Mychal Kendricks, Brandon Graham and their partners on a relentless defense combined for nine sacks and five turnovers against battered Carolina quarterback Cam Newton. There is nothing — not even great comeback stories like Sanchez's — that Eagles fans like more than seeing the opponent getting smashed in the face.

And now it's time to acknowledge the most improbable development in this implausible 7-2 season so far — the emergence of a defense that makes up for a lack of big names with heart and brains. Defensive coordinator Billy Davis has become a perfect complement on defense to Chip Kelly's wizardry on the other side of the ball.

Sanchez is 7-for-7 in the red zone with the Eagles. / GETTY IMAGES

Cataldi looks ahead

"Can they scare away the ghosts at Lambeau Field Sunday in Green Bay? If you're betting against them — against Chip Kelly — then you clearly haven't been paying attention."

Kelly scoffed when I asked him on Tuesday on my WIP radio show if his system is more important than the people running it, but the score on Monday (45-21) and his record as Eagles coach (17-8) speak for themselves. How would the next opponent, Green Bay, fare without Aaron Rodgers and Clay Matthews? How would any other NFL team?

Barwin is a classic example of what happens when a good player inhales the rarefied air of Chip Kelly's world. He had three sacks in his final season with Houston two years ago, and 15 1/2 in the 25 games since then.

What is especially amazing about these Eagles is the understated way they are achieving the extraordinary. Two years after being upstaged by the Tim Tebow circus, Sanchez quietly enjoyed his finest game statistically in the NFL on Monday night, throwing for 332 yards with no interceptions while following Kelly's instructions flawlessly. So how did Broadway Mark celebrate his big night? With a cheesesteak at Geno's. What else?

The Eagles proved on Monday night that they are still ready for prime time, even without Nick Foles and DeMeco Ryans. Now comes an even bigger challenge.

Royals could be suitors for Howard

According to USA Today's Bob Nightengale, the American League champs, who may need a slugger to serve as an everyday DH, are considering making a move for Ryan Howard. Nightengale says Philadelphia would have to eat a big chunk of the first baseman's salary.

Matthews warns against 'drinking the Kool-Aid'

The only thing better than watching Jordan Matthews' career-best performance Monday was hearing him talk to the media after it.

Following his 138-yard, two-touchdown performance, the rookie wide receiver said he finally knew what it felt like to be his mentor, Jeremy Maclin.

"I felt like I was Jeremy Maclin," Matthews said. "I have a bunch of great guys ahead of me who show me how to be a professional. If you take too much time looking at the stats and drinking the Kool-Aid, you lose your appetite. I just try to put it behind me and move forward."

JORDAN MATTHEWS
GETTY IMAGES

Matthews and Maclin must drink from the same cup, because they're the only Eagles rookies ever with 130-plus yards and two TDs in a game.

And what did Matthews have to say about the quarterback slinging him his seven receptions?

"I mean, he's a baller," Matthews said of Mark Sanchez. "He's a franchise quarterback. We are probably one of the only teams with two franchise quarterbacks." EVAN MACY

NFL. Fletcher, Eagles secondary hit stride against Panthers

After Monday night's impressive 45-21 win, Bradley Fletcher couldn't even remember the last time he scored a touchdown. But he knew it was the first time he ever had a pick six.

"When you get a lead like that early in the game, you know they're going to have to throw the ball to get back into it," the cornerback said, citing the 24-7 lead the Birds had just prior to his interception return for a touchdown. "So we knew we were going to have some opportunities to make some plays. I'm just happy to be helping the team."

The game was statically Fletcher's best performance as a pro. In addition to his interception for a score, he had four solo tackles and got credit for five deflected passes.

The secondary was a game changer against the Panthers, with Cary Williams and Nate Allen also picking off a battered Cam Newton, who was also sacked nine times.

Quoted

"Hopefully we'll continue to build on it because we have a big challenge coming up here on Sunday in Green Bay." Chip Kelly

"It was good they finally came up with interceptions today," head coach Chip Kelly said. "They've been so close. They played really well last week against Houston. I think that's carrying over."

Fletcher and the defense seemed to feed off the home crowd. The Birds are 5-0 at home this season and have been spectacular under the lights ever since Kelly arrived in 2013.

"Our crowd is great," Fletcher said. "To be able to come out here on a Monday night and have the stands packed like that, having them so much into the game and cheering for us so much, it just makes us, as far as defensive players, want to play for them, play for our team and play for the organization."

If offense wins during the regular season and defense wins championships, the Eagles seem to have a fantastic formula working as Bill Davis continues to make the right calls as defensive coordinator. EVAN MACY

NCAA preview

Owls hoops improved, have brutal schedule

After a 9-22 season in 2013-14, Temple head coach Fran Dunphy and the Owls are looking to regain their form this season and reach the NCAA tournament once again — something they've done in six of the past seven seasons.

Temple bolstered its roster in the offseason, adding 6-foot-9 freshman Obi Enechionyia and transfers Jaylen Bond and Jesse Morgan to their already talented squad.

Enechionyia, the team's only freshman, averaged 15 points, 11 rebounds and three blocks in his senior season at St. James High School in Maryland.

Quenton DeCosey is one of several key Owls returning for the 2014-15 season. / GETTY IMAGES

Bond and Morgan are Philly-area talents who've made their way back home. Bond averaged 2.8 points and 3.2 rebounds and just 11 minutes last season at Texas, while Morgan averaged 13.4 points, 2.9 rebounds and 1.7 steals in 2012-13 with UMass. Morgan will miss the team's first 10 games, after the NCAA allowed him to play in just the second semester this season.

They'll add much needed balance and depth alongside Will Cummings (16.8 points, 4.6 assists, 3.4 rebounds), Quenton DeCosey (15.4 points, 3.9 rebounds, 2.4 assists) and Devontae Watson (5.8 points, 7.6 rebounds in 19-plus minutes).

They're set to face five currently ranked teams (Duke, Villanova, Kansas, UConn, SMU). The Owls will face UConn and SMU twice in tough AAC battles in the winter. They'll need to build their identity early as Jahlil Okafor and Duke come to town on Nov. 21. JEFF MCMENAMIN

STATE OF MAINE
YORK, ss. PROBATE COURT

ORDER OF SERVICE BY PUBLICATION

SPECIAL PROBATE NOTICE TO ANY KNOWN OR UNKNOWN BIRTH FATHERS

At a Probate Court held at Alfred in and for the County of York, State of Maine, on the twenty-second day of October in the year of our Lord two thousand fourteen, it is hereby ORDERED that notice by publication of the following matter be given to any known or unknown birth fathers whose name and whereabouts are unknown and cannot be ascertained by reasonable due diligence.

This matter is required by law to be confidential. The subject matter cannot be published because of the risk of breaching confidentiality. The names of other parties to this action are Francheska Lacend and Baby Boy Lacend. For a more detailed notice of this pending matter any known or unknown birth fathers should contact the Court by telephone at 207-324-1577 or write to the Court at York County Probate Court, 45 Kennebunk Road, Alfred, Maine, 04002. Failure to contact the Court within 20 days of service being completed (which is 14 days after the first publication of this notice) will result in a default and substantial loss of rights.

It is further ORDERED that this Order be published once a week for two successive weeks in a paper of general circulation in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, a newspaper of general circulation where mother became pregnant and putative father is most likely to be located. I FURTHER ORDER that the names of the birth mother and child be specified in the notice. First publication is to be on or before November 19, 2014.
